Textile Transformations: Redefining Fiber Sculpture

August 23 – October 11, 2025

Reception: Saturday September 13, 2-4pm

Working with simple materials such as cotton string, Darlyn sculpts each artwork carefully selecting and meticulously tying thousands upon thousands of knots. This labor-intensive technique, the process of making the work, becomes just as important as its resulting form.

There is also a certain intimacy in Darlyn's knotted work that is borne of the process itself. Each knot is a moment of her time spent in studio, providing structure and bringing a sense of order to the chaotic lengths of string.
